Dean at Cal Poly sees return of patriotism

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

An administrator at Cal Poly Pomona said 10 years as a Marine Corps officer taught him to better understand his own strengths and weaknesses.

"Those years in the service taught me things about myself which I could never learn from a book," said Henry House of Claremont, who serves as dean of students.

"Sometimes it was unpleasant. But serving in the Marines was an education."

House is a quiet, soft-spoken man with a quick smile and an obvious love of life and people. He spends his spare time raising tropical plants.

House would just as soon discuss how to propagate vanilla bean plants as problems on college campuses. But he is quick to stress that "students are the reason we are at Cal Poly."

House has been on the university staff since he arrived at the old Voorhis campus in San Dimas in 1947. He moved with the staff to the present Pomona campus.

He is a product of the California State University and Colleges system. He graduated from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in 1943 with a degree in dairy management.

While today's college students are eager to get good resumes and qualify for jobs, House recalls the 1960s and 1970s when Cal Poly had its share of the unrest and discontent which prevailed on most college campuses across the nation.

"Those were days I prefer not to dwell upon," the dean said. "But at least my service training probably made me better prepared to cope than some of the staff."

While the Pomona university has its share of student protesters and even a couple incidents of damage and injuries, these same former student leaders are among House's good friends today.

"I am a strong supporter of the free education provided in California," House said. "Without it, I would not have been able to go to college."

Coming from a family of eight, House was raised on a dairy in Imperial Valley. His first contact with the SLO campus came while he was in high school.

"I probably spent more time in student activities and the Future Farmers of America than in the classroom," he grinned. "I attended FFA conventions at the San Luis Obispo campus and decided I wanted to go to college there. A $100 scholarship from the owner of Challenge Dairy helped me go to college."

One thing which hasn't changed much on the Cal Poly campuses is the high percentage of students who work either full time or part time while going to school.

House places the present number of working students at well over 75 percent.

"In the CSUC schools, a student can still work his way through," the dean pointed out.

Just as World War II was about to begin, House attempted to get into the Army Air Corps as a fighter pilot. But he was too young. Shortly after that, he applied to the Marine Corps and was accepted.

"It was early in 1942 and everone wanted to get into the service. We were afraid the war would be over before we got a piece of the action," he recalled.

But House saw his share of the action, he noted. After officers' training in Quantico, Va., he served in the South Pacific. Assigned to the First Amphibious Tractor Battalion, House landed on the Russell Islands, Guadacanal and Okinawa.

He was on active duty from 1943 to 1947 and remained in the reserves until 1952.

House confesses he might have stayed in the Marine Corps Reserves longer but financial restrictions made reserve training "boring," he said.

Still interested in the military service, the dean reported that ROTC programs are gaining popularity on local college campuses.

"We have cooperative programs which now make the Army, Navy and Air Force reserve training programs available on local campuses," he noted.

"An attitide of patriotism is coming back," House added. "The president is restoring pride in the fact that we are a people with a great heritage. We don't have any problems in this country which we can't solve if we commit ourselves to them.

"Sure, there is inherent greed in mankind. But we can rise above that and solve our problems."

House and his wife, Bette, reside in Claremont. They are parents of four children.

School vandalism now a major education expense

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

From the outside, little appears to have changed at the campus.

Except for boarded windows, there are few reasons to suspect the Montclair school building is a recent casualty of school violence.

Statewide, vandalism costs school districts between $80 million and $100 million a year, according to an attorney general's report. In comparison, the report added, $142 million is spent on books.

Locally, the Chaffey Joint Union High School District sustained more than $60,000 in damage during the 1980-81 school year. During the same period, the district spent $84,000 on books.

Yet Chaffey officials feel they were lucky last year.

Luck wasn't on the side of the Ontario-Montclair School District this summer, however. In addition to the fire at Mountain High, two other schools in the district were set afire.

Both blazes inflicted hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of damage.

Vandalism prompted Ontario-Montclair officials to create a security department last year and other districts have been forced to rethink their security plans.

Although all districts acknowledge that vandalism, burglaries, fires and broken windows are problems that cannot be overlooked, some have been lucky enough to avoid major destruction.

In the Upland School District, vandalism accounted for less than $6,000 worth of damage last year while in the Cucamonga District damage was negligible, according to district superintendents.

Both districts, however, have had classrooms destroyed by arsonists in recent years.

"I don't think there's any question that it's an increasing problem," said Chaffey's business manager Russ Dickinson.

The Chaffey District shared in the losses at Mountain High on Aug. 23. It was renting the building, formerly Buena Vista School, for its alternative school. Yet Dickinson thinks chances for reimbursement for the loss are slim.

"A kid gets 'caught and he's released and you might get a minor amount of money but the benefits of catching a kid are so small ..."

"It's difficult to prove intent because of (some) of the kids' ages," said Ontario-Montclair's chief security officer Stephen Nowicki. "How do you prove a six-year-old knew what he was doing?"

The police and the courts have several options in dealing with violators, Nowicki said. A child can be counseled and released, placed on formal or informal probation or go through the court process.

For the four children charged with starting the fire at Buena Vista and minors caught vandalizing schools, probation is usually the punishment.

Districts also have the option of holding parents responsible for their childrens' acts. Yet they are limited to collecting $5,000 from each family.

School districts are placed in financial difficulties when vandalism takes place, regardless of what a police investigation uncovers.

"We do not have an extensive amount of vandalism," said Upland School District superintendent George Renworth, "but we obviously have some of it any amount is sort of frustrating education dollars are hard to come by."

Renworth explained that two fires in his school district (one took place two years ago, the other three years ago) took $50,000 each out of the budget.

"But we couldn't maintain a school district security force ... it would just be too expensive and it would be almost impossible to have ample coverage."

Dickinson said that obtaining insurance for much of the vandalism would carry too high a premium for the district to bear. A security force, he added, could not be justified.

School security forces are relatively new, Nowicki said. Since he took over the force in the Ontario-Montclair district, the department has worked to coordinate its activities and those of other law enforcement agencies.

"In my opinion it's imperative for school boards to employ their own police force," Nowicki said. "Then you have a police officer whose No. 1 priority is the school district. In municipal police departments school crime is not a priority.

"That's because the losses are low compared to outside crime. There are bigger cases to be conducted."

The department's two agents visit police departments on a daily basis and launch investigations on crimes against school property.

"We are getting out checking doors, stopping kids and talking on the campuses, and as a result we made nine arrests in 10 days.

"That tells us there is activity going on on our campuses."

While it's difficult to draw up a profile of a school vandal, Nowicki has noticed some tendencies among those who get caught.

Family difficulties are many times a part of a vandal's background.

Some acts are motivated by vengeance, he added, but most are senseless.

"Like the kids we believe started the fire at Buena Vista, we asked one suspect why they did it and she said, 'we thought it would be fun to watch it burn.'"

It's hard to predict when or where vandalism will take place, district officials say, but there are methods to remove the temptation.

In a handbook published by the School Safety Center, districts were given dozens of tips to avoid school vandalism.

The first is a security checklist that asks administrators questions on alarm systems, identification of school employees, visibility in parking areas, fencing, vandal resistant walls and the marking of school equipment.

Schools are also advised to set up an incident report system. Districts are already required to forward a report to the state twice a year.

"Two or three years ago the districts were asking the state legislature to form some kind of insurance program and they may be gathering information (with the new reporting system)," Dickinson said.

"Last year a bill was submitted that would provide districts with an extra allocation (for property damage) in addition to regular allocations."

The report even gives districts tips on how school design can hinder vandals.

"Crime prevention is proactive," Nowicki said, "We've got to identify problems and draw the administrators' attention to the problems.

"I can't prevent someone from wanting to rip off a school. What I try to do is to reduce the opportunity for something to happen."

Nowicki said a big problem is overcoming the feeling that "it won't happen here".

"You just can't hire a police department and say cut crime," he added. "There has to be a committment by all district employees that crime prevention is their concern."

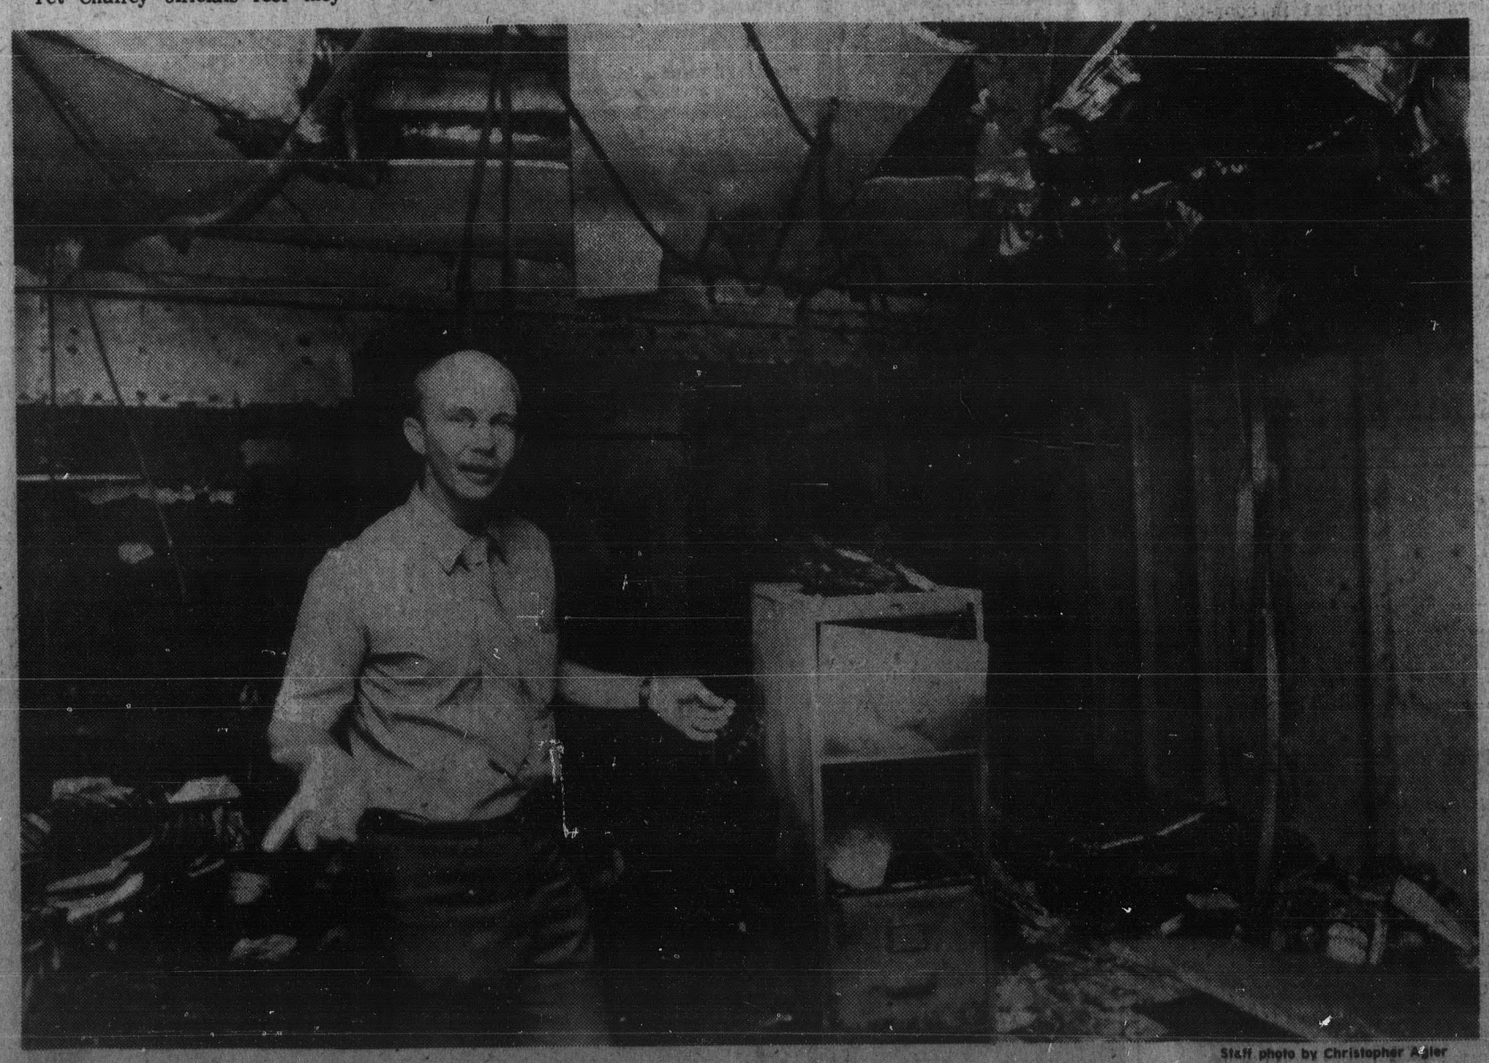

Patrols and alarms can also be a deterrent, Dickinson said.

"We've hired private security guards on holidays and weekends," he said. "Maybe that's stopped something.

"And we've also installed intrusion alarms on some campuses but we can't tell how successful they are."

In the Cucamonga School District, community involvement may be halting the tide of vandalism.

"The community has pride in our buildings," said Superintendent Robert Velasquez. "The public is becoming more cost conscious."

Ontario-Montclair School District's security chief Stephen Nowicki inspects ruins of Mountain High Alternative School, formerly Buena Vista School. Burned by vandals in late August, damage could reach $400,000. School vandalism is on the increase in some areas, officials say, and ways are being sought to combat it.

'Elephants to frolic' at GOP fashion show

An "Elephants Fashion Frolic Extravaganza" will be held Sept. 27 starting at 11 a.m. at the Industry Hills main ballroom in the City of Industry sponsored by the Chaffey Community Republican Women, Federated.

Kenneth L. "Ken" Khachigian, presidential speech writer, will be speaking on his professional assignments for the White House and about working on President Ronald Reagan's major speeches and his inaugural address.

He also will introduce honored guests which will include Rep. David Dreir, R-35th District; Rep. Wayne Grisham, R-33rd District; and John Rousselot, R-26th District. Also State Sen. Bill Richardson, R-25th District; and William Campbell, R-33rd District; and Assemblymen David Stirling, R-64th District; Richard Mountjoy, R-61st District; and William Lancaster, R-62nd District.

Khachigian is a Visalia native where his grandfather settled after immigrating in 1912 from Armenia. At the University of California, Santa Barbara, he first formulated his Republican political philosophy. Following graduation, he studied at Columbia University Law School.

Khachigian volunteered in the Richard Nixon campaign for the presidency and helped provide material for his speeches. He left the study of law and in 1970, served as assistant to Herb Klein, communications director, and soon became an integral part of the speech-writing team for President Reagan.

In 1979, he was signed on as a consultant to Reagan's campaign and now occupies an office in Washington, D. C., and at his San Clemente home.

This social and fund-raising event will start with a social hour and brunch.

The fashion show will be presented by the Apparel Shop of the Industry Hills Golf Center featuring designer clothes. Models will show a range of outfits ranging from the sporty variety to cocktail dresses and furs. Clark Keen's Orchestra will provide the music.

Proceeds from the "Elephants Fashion Frolic Extravaganza" will be used by the sponsoring club to maintain the headquarters in Upland, for education and providing information materials for voters in precinct work.

Jo Egelhoff is general chairman. Working with her will be the following: the Mrs. William Nelson, decorations, assisted by the Mmes. Mike Beebe, Kenneth Horrell, Thomas Parker, Frank Cooke and Isabel Taylor; Mrs. Horrel, invitations chairman, assisted by the Mmes. William Humphrey, Thomas McAleer, Steven Svircey, Cyril Tulley, William Nelson, Oran Kordes and Jack Herman and Irene Monaghan, Zo Anne Hamlin, Alex Worcester and Raquel Tuazon.

Also, Mrs. Frank Cooke, hostesses chairman, assisted by the Mmes. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Worcester at 985-4537.

Making plans for the "Elephants Fashion Frolic Extravaganza" to be held Sept. 27 at the Industry Hills ballroom, City of Industry, are, from the left, Mrs. David Worcester, Mrs. William Nelson and Irene Monaghan. Sponsoring the event is the Chaffey Community Republican Women's Club. Federated. The event will start at 11 a.m. with a social hour, brunch at noon followed by a speaker and fashion show of designer-fashion clothes. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Worcester at 985-4537.

COPE endorses three candidates

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

The Coalition of Parents and Educators (COPE) endorsed incumbent Kathleen Brugger and newcomers Judy Briggs and David Van Fleet as candidates Thursday night for three board seats in the Ontario-Montclair School District.

Ken Dean, chairman of COPE, said the endorsements were made by majority vote at a regular meeting of the group. About 65 members attended the meeting, Dean said.

Seven candidates are running for the offices on the Nov. 3 ballot. Dean said all contenders were invited to a screening Wednesday night before representatives of COPE, the Ontario-Montclair Teachers Association (OMTA) and American Federation of Teachers (AFT), Local 2442.

Five candidates attended the screening. Dean said Alan Novack did not respond to the invitation. William Hennie, president of the school board, declined the invitation in a letter to Kathy Kinley, past president of OMTA.

Dean said COPE plans to hold neighborhood coffee klatches to introduce the candidates and to distribute fliers, leaflets and yard signs.

OMTA and AFT will make separate endorsements. Dean estimated that COPE has close to 200 members.

Hennie's letter this week came against a backdrop of teacher dissatisfaction over contract negotiations and ongoing criticism of the board and adminstration by COPE.

He told Kinley he declined the invitation to the screening because COPE was included.

"I am disappointed in your decision to include non-professionals, especially those with a totally negative attitude toward all the good things that have taken place in our district over the past two years.

"The leadership of OMTA has continually failed to make public their feelings and support for the board decisions that have rehabilitated the school facilities, the large salary and benefit increase last year and the numerous improvements that have increased educational opportunities for kids in our schools.

"Your endorsement is not necessary to me, and until your public attitude and your professional demeanor improve, I cannot and will not accept an endorsement from OMTA," Hennie wrote.

Dean, a pharmacist, said he and other members of COPE found Hennie's reference to non-professionals "offensive." He noted the group includes teachers, school administrators and professionals from other fields.

"If he is speaking of teaching professionals, I don't understand how he feels he can only be questioned by teachers and not by other members of the voting public," Dean said.

He said COPE's attitude has not been "totally negative" to events of the last two years, or it would not have endorsed an incumbent, Brugger.

"I wonder why he feels he only has to defend the last two years, the Plaster years," Dean said, referring to Superintendent Bill Plaster.

GD employees given degrees

Four General Dynamics Pomona Division employees have received master of engineering degrees after completing UCLA's two-year engineer executive program.

They are Ron Abbott, Pomona, project engineer; Steve M. Albright, Rancho Cucamonga, group engineer; Natalie F. Jung, Diamond Bar, assistant program manager; and Steve Pipher, Chino, section chairman.

Program participants are selected by engineering directors at the Pomona plant on the basis of individual management potential. They complete the two-year course on their own time.

"The main thrust of the program," said Jung, "is to teach engineers who are used to working with 'things' how to work with people."

"We were taught an overall philosophy of how to manage people in a technical organization," added Albright.

Pipher explained the program dealt with "practical management subjects such as group problem solving.

Lou Cassani

In an installation ceremony recently at Red Hill Country Club, Cucamonga, Lou Cassani became the lieutenant governor of Division 15, Kiwanis International.

Stu Rosen, Kiwanis California-Nevada-Hawaii District governor, conducted the installation.

Upon taking his new position, Cassani pledged to the continuation of community services in coordinating the 14 Kiwanis Clubs and nearly 800 Kiwanians in his district.

Cassani has been a member of the Montclair Kiwanis for 16 years and is a past president. He also is a past president of the Montclair Chamber of Commerce and now is on the board for Doctors' Hospital, Montclair, and LeRoy's Boys Home.

Thinking about taking a class?

Music Lessons

A variety of music lessons will be available this fall through Upland Recreation Department.

Beginning violin is offered to students six years and older on Wednesdays from 4:15-5 p.m. Through a practical and logical approach, students learn musical notation, care, tuning and playing of the instrument.

Beginning accordion, taught in small groups is available to those 5-8 years from 3:30-4:15 p.m.; 9-12 years meet 4:15-5 p.m. on Tuesday afternoons.

Piano and organ lessons will be available on Mondays—3-4 years, 1:30-2:15 p.m.; 5-8 years, 3:30-4:15 p.m.; 9-12 years, 4:15-5 p.m. and for teens and adults from 7:30-8:15 p.m. Instruction is given in the basics of reading music and music theory.

The above classes are only $20 for five weeks and will be held at Ellie Ward Studios, 380 W. 9th St., Upland.

Banjo instruction of bluegrass, country and gospel style is available to anyone eight years and older. Basic chords, rhythm and finger picking are included. The class, taught by Les Holstein, is $26 for six weeks and meets at the Recreation Department, 123 E. 'D' Street, on Thursdays from 8:45-9:30 p.m.

Guitar lessons may also be taken at the Recreation Department on Thursday evenings from 8-8:45 p.m. For ages eight years and up the class is $26 for six weeks. Electric bass and harmonica will be taught as complimentary instruments in both guitar and banjo classes to those interested.

Registration for all classes will begin September 21 at the Upland Recreation Office, 123 E. 'D' St. Classes begin the week of September 28. For more information, call 985-0994.

'Figure control'

Evening exercise classes, "figure control," are offered on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 8 p.m. A new six-week session will begin Oct. 12.

Fatured will be fundamental stretch- and-tone exercises with music. Use of the weightroom and sauna will also be available to all participants.

The fee for the six-week session will be $10 for two nights per week or $5 for one night per week. The instructor is Adrienne Watson.

Firms cited for pollution

Two Fontana metal-melting plants were among the firms prosecuted during August in actions brought by the South Coast Air Quality Management District.

U.S. Reduction and Vista Metals Corp., both of Fontana, were among the 25 firms fined during the month.

U.S. Reduction was fined $255 for excessive visible emissions. Vista Metal was fined twice for excessive visible emissions. The fines were $195 and $169.

The Ontario-based O.H. Kruse Grain and Milling plant was fined $200 in December 1979 for excessive visible emissions. The case was previsously unreported by the district.

Twenty-five air pollution control violations were successfully prosecuted in August based on actions brought by the district. A total of $9,940 in fines was collected as a result of the decisions.

Chaffey fee

Revision of controversial levy to be studied

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

Parents and band students agreed to take a "wait and see" attitude toward revisions in Chaffey Joint Union High School District's controversial "student activity fee" Monday night.

District officials, acknowledging that the fee system still contains inequities, said revisions might take place during October and that students will not have to pay the fee until Oct. 15.

Approximately 130 parents, students and band boosters were on hand in Hill Auditorium to protest imposition of the $25 fee on all extracurricular activities. Performing units (such as school marching bands) that make more than two public appearances were included on the list of assessed activites.

Under the program adopted in July by trustees, money derived from the fees will not be pumped directly into a specific extracurricular activity. Instead, the money will go into the district's general fund to be used as needed.

Board President Charles Uhalley defended the plan on the grounds that without the fee, an across-the-board cut of 20 percent would have been made in extracurricular activities this year.

Parents said they had no objection to the fee as long as the band benefits.

Wearing bumper stickers proclaiming "I love the Chaffey High School Band and Drill Team," parents said they recognized the district has financial problems but that "enrollment in the performing arts has dropped 10 to 20 percent this year because of the fees," according to spokeswoman Brenda Corbett.

She complained that some students have performed extracurricular activities without paying the fee and asked that policies be implemented on a uniform basis.

Corbett gave the board several alternatives to the fee including reimbursement of bonuses given to band directors and drill team advisors by booster clubs, a band uniform fund set up by student fees and a program by which students would pay for their transportation to performances.

One student said he considered the fee a "highly unfair tax."

The group of band supporters maintained that band is part of the curriculum and that students should not be penalized because they do not want to pay a fee.

Superintendent Mike Dirksen said student performances outside of class are not a part of curriculum and cannot be used in determining a student's grade in band classes.

Board member Ray Sarrio said that by imposing the fee, the district can afford to pay some teachers who oversee extracurricular activities. In that sense, he added, the fee is being used to support band, after-school sports, drill team and other activites.

Parents were invited to attend committee meetings at which changes in the procedure will be discussed.

Dirksen said assistant principals from the five high schools will meet today to discuss the policy and how it is being carried out at the various campuses.

In addition, parents were told they could apply for a fee waiver beyond the Oct. 15 deadline.

AirCal plans two new OIA-Phoenix flights

AirCal may soon have two new round-trip flights linking Ontario International Airport with Phoenix, Ariz.

The flights, scheduled to begin Nov. 1, have received Civil Aeronautics Board approval and are now awaiting Federal Aviation Administration authorization, according to Mark Peterson, the airline's director of public communication.

"We've requested authorization from the FAA to operate the flights under the agency's flow control plan, which has been under effect since the air traffic controller problems began," he said. "We're very optimistic."

"Flight times are not yet finalized, nor are fares. However, we will be very competitive with the fares charged by airlines serving comparable routes," Peterson said. Both 119-seat Boeing 737s and DC-9 Super 80s, with a 160-seat capacity, will be used to serve the flights, he said.

"We have determined Phoenix's continued growth as a business center and recreation area has a need for more efficient and reliable air transportation service," Peterson said.

Formerly Air California and confined to the state, the Phoenix flights will give AirCal five out-of-state destinations out of Ontario: Phoenix, Las Vegas, Reno, Seattle and Portland.

Peterson also announced rollbacks in both discount and standard AirCal fares for flights between OIA and Oakland, San Jose, Sacramento and Reno. They are effective immediately.

Standard fares have been reduced about $5; from $65 to $60 to Oakland or San Jose, from $67 to $62 to Sacramento and from $77 to $72 to Reno.

Discount fares were reduced an average of $10; from $45 to $36 for Oakland and San Jose, from $47 to $37 to Sacramento and from $54 to $43 to Reno.

The number of economy seats available on each plane is limited and they require a seven-day advance reservation, according to Peterson.

"Essentially, it's being implemented to help stimulate the market," he said. During the air traffic controller strike, he said, "we lost a lot of the discretionary travel and this is one way we hope to make up for that."

AirCal's use of the new Super 80 aircraft also allows fuel savings and increased passenger capacity, savings which they can pass on to consumers. he said.

Hearing into principal's demotion is rescheduled

For want of a courtroom, the hearing to review a request for writ of mandate by the attorney for Oliver Soderberg, the former Upland School District principal who was demoted in May 1980, was again postponed last week.

A San Bernardino County Superior Court judge had set the hearing for Sept. 10 when he granted a continuance of the hearing July 29, but there was no available courtroom last Thursday, Upland School District Superintendent George Renworth said.

A new court date of Sept. 29 was announced this week. The hearing will begin at 8:30 a.m.

The writ of mandate, filed by Soderberg's attorney Richard Anderson in mid-July, calls for district officials to either reinstate Soderberg in an administrative post or show cause why he should remain an elementary school teacher.

The district board of trustees demoted Soderberg from principal to teacher in May 1980; no reasons for the reassignment were released to the public.

$45,000 available for grants

The East Valley Regional Council on Aging is soliciting proposals from non-profit organizations serving the elderly in the East Valley of San Bernardino County for grants of money to support new or existing senior citizens' programs.

The East Valley includes the areas in and around Fontana, Bloomington, Rialto, Colton, Grand Terrace, San Bernardino, Highland, Loma Linda, Redlands and Yucaipa.

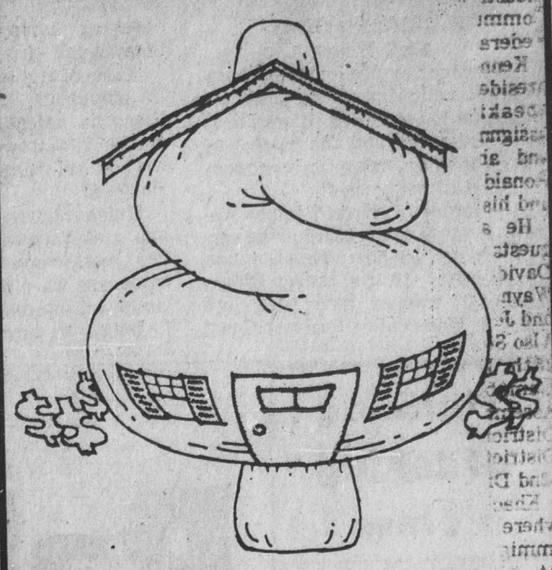

Approximately $45,000 will be available from Federal appropriations, approved under Title III of the Older Americans Act, being provided through the auspices of the San Bernardino County Office on Aging.

To apply, a letter of intent should be addressed to the East Valley Regional Council on Aging, c/o Chris Sorenson, 25278-B Taylor Street, Loma Linda, CA 92354. A sample outline of the letter can be obtained by phoning 796-0826.

Eligible organizations, including both public and private non-profit groups, are urged to apply, starting immediately and up to October 30, 1981.

Suits stemming from I-15 crashes include state too

By RICHARD GRAY
Staff Writer

Everyone involved in the chain-reaction collisions of two dozen vehicles on fog-shrouded Interstate 15 last November and the state now have another thing in common: They're all being sued.

The family of Edward James Waroway, one of seven killed in the early morning rush-hour chain-reaction crashes Nov. 10, and Steven Ridge, one of 17 injured, have filed civil suits in West Valley Superior Court seeking unspecified monetary damages.

Each of the two civil suits name 28 individuals, the state and 150 John Does as defendants. Ridge is not named in Waroway's suit and Waroway is not named in Ridge's suit, however.

Ridge, 23, now residing in Oklahoma, and Waroway, 38, of Apple Valley, met briefly the morning of the collisions when they both stopped to assist an injured motorist.

Both men jumped from the path of an approaching vehicle, but Waroway "jumped the wrong way" and was killed, said Beverly Hills attorney Erwin Sobel, who is representing Waroway's survivors and Ridge. Ridge sustained a broken leg.

The civil suits are aimed at "basically everyone involved" and charges the California Department of Transportation with failing to station fog warning vehicles along Interstate 15 the morning of the collisions, Sobel said.

Although the state does dispatch such vehicles to areas where seasonal fog is common, the wall of fog descending on the highway Nov. 10 was unusual and warning vehicles were not sent to the area, said Walt Wolf of the California Highway Patrol in San Bernardino.

"Where was the state when we needed them the most?," Sobel said. "They were inviting disaster."

The chain reaction involved 24 vehicles traveling south on Interstate 15 in the Rancho Cucamonga-Fontana area through the wall of fog. Motorist Dwight Bilbee, 83, of Lytle Creek drove into the back of a slow-moving semi truck driven by William Nitti, 41, of Hesperia.

The CHP named Bilbee as causing the series of rear end collisions. CHP officers cited two other motorists for driving with defective brakes and a third for speeding, Wolf said.

Bonsai show planned

The Akebono Bonsai Society of Southern California will display artfully dwarfed trees and sell a wide selection of bonsai plants at its show Saturday and Sunday at the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum in Arcadia.

The show, open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. both days, is included in the Arboretum admission fee of $1 for adults, and 50 cents for students of any age, senior citizens and youngsters from 5 through 17 years of age.

Bonsai (pronounced BONE-sigh) is a horticultural art form developed in Japan more than 600 years ago that captures the appearance and spirit of ancient trees in miniature.

About 150 examples of bonsai will be exhibited at the show with sizes ranging from dwarf plants called name that are under six inches tall to olive and maple trees reduced from their normal height down to less than four feet tall.

In addition to the exhibits, Ben Suzuki, a master teacher with many years experience in bonsai, will give demonstrations on bonsai techniques at 2 p.m. both days.

He will show visitors how to prune root and shape branches of young plants to simulate the spare, windswept look required for the classic bonsai shapes such as cascade, formal upright, and slant.

Plants for sale during the show include both youg nursery stock suitable for bonsai training and older trees that are already pruned and wired into shape.

Thinking of taking a class?

Microcomputers

The Upland Recreation Department and the Foothill Computer Center are co-sponsoring a class to acquaint and demonstrate participants with computer uses in the home.

General applications covered are; family education, personal financial management, information retrieval, home entertainment, word processing and future application areas. Some of the individual applications discussed are check book balancing, income tax deduction records, furniture and item inventories, maintenance and guarantee records, personal appointments and date calendar, utility costs and usage by appliance, Christmas card address list, family budgeting by catagories, word processing, loan amortization and investment management, home entertainment games, and family education from preschool through college level in various subject areas.

The course, held on Tuesday evenings from 7-8:30 p.m. includes actual usage of a microcomputer for application demonstrations.

Taught by Foothill Computer Staff, the class will be held at the Community Center, 949 W. Foothill Blvd. Upland. Registration for the $35 class begins September 21 at the Recreation Office, 123 E. 'D' Street. For more information call 985-0994.

Suicide: The Preventable Death

The Office of Continuing Education at Cal Poly University Pomona is offering Suicide: The Preventable Death Friday, Oct. 2, 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

This workshop is opened to the public but is designed to meet the professional needs of nurses, social workers, clergy, teachers, counselors, and people who work in the fields of mental health and crisis intervention. After attending this workshop, you will be able to: recognize the warning signs of a suicidal crisis: distinguish between a genuine threat and one meant merely to gain attention or to manipulate; assess and seriousness of a suicidal person's "plan of attack", evaluate the degree of risk inherent in a suicidal crises; adequately respond to a suicidal episode. BRN approved for six hours, provider No. 00091.

This workshop will be held at the Kellogg West Center for Continuing Education. The instructor for this workshop is Dr. Marv Miller, and the fee is $70, non-credit.

For more information call 598-4391.

United Way kicks off 1981-82 fund drive

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

The 1981-82 West End United Way fund drive is on its way and running the local circuit on a circus theme of "The Greatest Show of Love" to raise $1,208,000 to support 42 member agencies.

The kickoff was held Thursday on the lawn of the California Air National Guard at Ontario International Airport. There were 225 volunteers and agencies' representatives who lined up for hot dogs, popcorn, soda pop and ice cream. Those who preferred not to stand in the long line were provided with box lunches.

United Way dignitaries attending the event were Bill Bent, Western regional director of the United Way of America, and Paul Smith, corporate vice president of the Los Angeles United Way.

Don Crawford, former campaign chairman and board member of the West End United Way, served as the master of ceremonies.

W.J. "Pap" Paprocki, current campaign chairman, introduced Jim Yarter as his and Dick Verrue as his dual vice chairmen.

Paprocki announced that the pilot campaigns have had three successful reports from the fund drives conducted before kickoff to give a barometer of things to come.

He introduced Dan Dyck of the Insurance Company of North America who reported $2,933 in pledges making this a 75 Percent increase over last year.

Joann Bowman was introduced as the chairman of the JCPenny pilot campaign. "I am extremely proud of this campaign," Paprochi said, "because we have had three outstanding years where the giving has been increased far in excess of the goal. This year at 45 percent increase has brought pledges to $16,643."

Paprocki then introduced Judy Powell of Mervyn's Ontario Distribution Center who led the first official campaign in that company bringing in $30,110 or a 378 percent increase over 1980. Mervyn's was not at full employment last year.

The divisions, goals and chairmen were introduced. These are the following: Division A, businesses employing 250 or more, Bob Menke, chairman, with a $646,802 goal and $8,445 reported to date; Division B, businesses employing 50 to 249, Larry Messina, chairman, with a goal of $307,138 and $53,989 reported to date; Division C, businesses employing 49 or less, Jim Maples and Ann Bird, co-chairman, with a goal of $131,518 with $16,694 reported to date; Division D, independent businesses, Rae Jean Hoyos, chairman, with a goal of $10,987 and $374 reported to date; Division E, schools and agencies, as well as non-professional and non-government agencies, Tom Feiertag, chairman, with a $55,736 goal and $1,522 reported to date; Division F, professionals, Municipal Court Judge Milton Milleman, chairman, with a $14,568 goal and $344 reported to date; Division G, residential, Rene and Barbara Biane, co-chairmen, with a goal of $25,000 and $240 reported to date; and federal employees, Edythe Armstrong, chairman, with a $16,251 goal and $550 reported to date.

The total sum which launches this 1981-82 campaign is $82,148 or 6.8 percent of goal, according to Paprocki.

Entertainment was provided by the West End YMCA Tumblers, Annie Zimmerman and Kelly Smith, both 5, and Jake Gomez, 6. Sue Smith is the instructor.

Capturing the imagination of the kick off group were the belly dancers, Kit McCulloch and Sharon Lair.

Also introduced were the four loaned executives, Gary Johnson from the City of Montclair, Jerry Groene of the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan, Jerry Sidow of Lockheed Aircraft Services and Mel Rinewalt of the County of San Bernardino.

Shopping center planned

Eagle National Development Co. has announced final plans for a $7.5 million shopping center on the northeast corner of Central Avenue and Arrow Highway across from Montclair Regional Mall and Entertainment Center.

According to Jim Dromgoole, managing partner for the San Diego - based development firm, Montclair Village Square will be located on a five - acre site which was an artists' colony during the 1930s and '40s. In keeping with the site's nostalgic value and the wishes of local residents, of trees and other features from the original colony will be preserved and incorporated into the design of the new shopping mall.

Hearings on state platform issues

All Democratic voters in the 62th Assembly District are invited to participate in a state platform issues conference to be held on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Ontario Public Library, 215 E C St., Ontario, according to Mike McDermott, assembly district chairman.

The conference will be organized to develop platform recommendations in six categories: the economy, budget policy-human needs, crime, energy and environment, individual and civil liberties, and world peace.

10,000 to ride for diabetes

McDonald's eighth annual Bike Ride Against Diabetes, the nation's largest benefit bike ride, winds onto 123 neighborhood trails from Atascadero to the Mexican border Sunday, Oct.4.

More than 10,000 Southern Californians are expected to surpass $500,000 in sponsor pledges to benefit the American Diabetes Association programs of research, public and professional education and a summer camp for diabetic children.

Diabetes is the nation's number three killer silently stalking 10 million Americans. The blood sugar disorder strikes a new victim every 60 seconds. In Southern California alone, there are 800,000 diabetics.

Sponsor sheets available at the American Diabetes Association and all participating McDonald's are brought to the ride with pledges for each mile pedaled. Then riders aged five to 85 take to neighborhood trails between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. including McDonald's restaurant in Upland.

Nursery school hosts auction

Diamond Bar Congregational Nursery School will host an art auction Oct. 2 at the school on the corner of Pathfinder Road and Diamond Bar Boulevard.

A preview of the art will begin at 7 p.m. with the auction at 8. The art offered for sale will include oils, watercolors, serigraphs and lithographs with bids starting at wholesale prices.

Money raised will be used to purchase a movie and slide projector and playground equipment for the school.

Racquetball tournaments planned

The City of San Dimas Parks and Recreation Department has announced plans for monthly racquetball tournaments at their Swim & Racquet Club, 990 W . Covina Boulevard. The first singles tournament was held during September with Brian Mulligan walking away with the tournament cup in the 29 years and under division and Mike Dutton capturing the honors in the 30 years and over division.

On Oct. 10, the club will offer a novice doubles tournament. Divisions will include men's 29 and under, men's 30 and over and open mixed doubles. First place trophies will be awarded in all divisions.

For further information, contact the Swim and Racquet Club at (714) 592-1430.

S.D. back-to-school night

San Dimas High School is sponsoring a back-to-school night on Wednesday, Sept. 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Parents will meet in the gymnasium for a short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Janet Cross, parent-faculty president. Next, parents will follow their student's class schedule and spend ten minutes having each teacher go over his/her objectives and goals for the year.

Bonelli County Park to get water slide

Another attraction for kids of all ages is being planned for the Frank G. Bonelli Regional County Park according to Supervisor Pete Schabarum. On Sept. 15 the County Board of Supervisors adopted a resolution to seek proposals from private vendors for the construction, operation and maintenance of a water slide amusement ride.

A one-acre site with suitable slopes has been reserved for possible leasing in an area overlooking the swim park and pavilion at the park.

Private vendors who want more information about water slide proposals are encouraged to contact Lisso P. Jackson, Real Property Branch of the Department of County Engineer-Facilities, telephone 738-2325.

Claremont woman at school in Bologna

Karen Weber of Claremont is attending the School of Advanced International Studies in Bologna, Italy.

She is pursuing a master of arts degree in International Relations and Economics at the school, which is a branch of John Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md.

Weber was graduated from Claremont High School in 1975 and Cal Poly Pomona in 1980 with a bachelor's degree in political science. She spent one year of undergraduate study at the University in Heidelberg, West Germany.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weber of Claremont and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Weber of Pomona.

Lamaze classes slated

A new series of Lamaze classes, sponsored by the Claremont Adult School, will begin Oct. 6 with additional series starting the first week of each month thereafter.

The eight-week class series will present the mechanics of labor and birth, breathing and muscle - releasing techniques, preparations for the role of the labor coach, delivery techniques and breast-feeding.

Manuals will be given to each student, and books on childbirth and related fields will be available for borrowing. Certificates, which are acceptable to local hospitals as proof of the students' attendance at Lamaze classes, will be issued at the end of the series. After the eight weeks of classes, practice sessions are planned for those who have not yet delivered.

Class size is limited, and a fee will be charged. Call Dorothy Hawkins, the instructor, at 626-4853 for more information and to register.

Holiday workshops

Temple Shalomn, 1912 W. Merced Ave., West Covina, announces the resumption of its highly successful "Holiday Workshop Series." According to a temple spokesman, in the 28-week course, the participants will find new depth to Judaism through the enjoyment of learning how to celebrate the sabbath and festivals at home, enhancing their knowledge of basic Judaism, becoming a closer family by sharing Jewish experiences at home.

The series will be presented by Rachel Nattiv, M.A in Jewish Studies. A Jewish educator, well-known for her creativity and innovative pioneering methods in Jewish education, she is the wife of Rabbi Elisha Nattiv. This course is co-sponsored by the Bureau of Jewish Education and Stephen S. Wise Temple, in cooperation with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, United Synagogue and the Federation of Reconstructionist Congregations and Fellowships (tm, Patti Golden).

The course includes booklets, materials, recipes and tradition for the sabbath and all the holidays, plus tape recordings of music for their enhancement. The classes are held on Thursday evenings, from 7:15 to 9:30 p.m., from Oct. 29 through May, with time off for school vacations.

An introductory session will be held at Temple Shalom tonight at 7:15 p.m. This course is open to all members of the community. For further information, including cost, call the temple office (213) 337-6500 or (213) 338-4112.

Star shows to begin again

The popular Thursday evening Citrus College Planetarium shows will resume on Oct. 1 at 7 p.m. with the traditional opening program, "Autumn Skies."

The one-hour show is free and open to the public. It will be repeated at 7 p.m. on Oct. 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29.

George Carlson, Citrus College astronomy instructor, will conduct the show using the planetarium's sophisticated equipment to allow viewers to see how stars in the universe would appear if they were not "drowned out" by the effects of city lights, smog and other weather conditions. Patterns in the stars that make up the constellations of the autumn sky will be discussed and legends and myths of many of these constellations will also be disclosed, according to Carlson.

The planetarium is a beehive-shaped building located in the northeastern section of the campus.

For additional information, call (213) 335-0521 or (714) 599-8339.

Stress control

Undo stress can make you sick. Don't let it. Dr. Bobbe L. Sommer says the body is designed to have good health. "The basic plan of life is that we all enjoy good health," she says. "But stress can disrupt that process."

Sommer, a licensed educational psychologist and marriage, family, and child counselor, will present her popular, one-day workshop on "Turning Stress into Success" on Saturday, Nov. 7, in the Student Center at Mt. San Antonio College. Sommer's successful workshops on holistic health, stress reduction, and related areas of physical and mental well being have been attended by thousands of people throughout the west, from Alaska to California.

Her seminars, presented on college campuses, at corporation staff meetings, and private groups and organizations, are informative and helpful, as well as entertaining.

Using meditation, exercise, self-hypnosis, Sommer shows workshop participants how to deal with stress, and how to get the mind and body working together smoothly for a healthy you. She maintains that our thoughts and perceptions determine our lives, and if we think depression or other negative emotions, we will be depressed. But knowing we can change, knowing we can do something about how we feel, act and relate, makes the big difference.

Sommer's talk will detail methods of gaining control over our physical and mental processes to be better able to live a rich, full life.

An $18 fee for the one-day Community Services' workshop may be paid at the time of registration by mail or in person at the Community Services Office, Building 4.

Participants are advised to dress casually, and bring a beach towel or the like, and a sack lunch. The seminar will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., with an hour lunch break.

New volunteer program

Mental Health Association West has announced a new volunteer program called Be-Friend which will offer temporary help to a person in transition or life crisis.

The Friend may help out for a few hours or a few weeks, the goal being to help the person become self-sufficient and able to cope.

Mental Health Association West anticipates a variety of needs will be met, ranging from help with errands for a shut-in to moral support during a bereavement crisis. If you need help call Mental Health Association West at 946-3030.

If you care about other people and have a little free time, you qualify to become a Be-Friend volunteer. Mental Health Association West provides continuous training. Your convenience and interests will be considered in assignments. Training will be offered on a regular basis Wednesday mornings at 9:30 a.m., at 8270 Foothill Blvd., Suite L, Rancho Cucamonga.

The Mexican Hat Dance and other traditional dances of Mexico will be taught. Children are asked to bring a round skirt and hard sole shoes. Pre-registration is requested.

For further information call 624-4531, extension 280.

Lower your grocery bill

Do grocery prices amaze you every time you go into a market? Now is your chance to do something about it.

Earline Paulson, an expert in consumerism, is teaching a workshop sponsored by the Claremont Human Services Department in how to lower your grocery bill. This is a practical "how to" course designed to help the consumer get more from her/his shopping dollar.

Including are techniques in saving both time and money when shopping. Also included in the course will be a discussion of various chain markets' pricing, service and attitudes. The instructor guarantees the participants will save more than the low workshop price on their first shopping expedition after the workshop.

The class is offered Monday and Oct. 5 from 7 - 9 p.m. is the first workshop time. Saturday, Oct. 3, from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. is the other alternative for taking the workshop. Both sessions are held at Memorial Park. Pre-registration is required. For further information please call 624-4531, extension 280.

Corn dogs and crowds

With only a few days left to go, the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona is attracting crowds at a record pace. This year's crowds have found a variety of activities awaiting them including a mile-long scenic monorail, a carnival midway and thousands of exhibitors.

Average attendance over the last eight years has topped the 1,170,000 mark. But last year's record-breaking crowd of 1,350,000 is already being outpaced by this year's attendance.

A fair is more than just corn dogs and crowds, however. Special events have made every day an exciting one for participants and fair-goers alike. Still scheduled is an international music festival, a junior high school bands contest, the California State Amateur Bluegrass Banjo Championship and Bluegrass Festival and the Good News Jubilee.

Each year the fair complex in Pomona becomes a city within a city. A police force, fire department, branch bank, post office, electric substation, telephone exchange, first aid facility, a nursery and a playground are in operation during the fair's 18-day run.

In addition, the fair's commissary purchases enough food for the more than one million visitors who will enter the grounds.

Horse racing is another popular pastime for those who visit the fair. Races are held every day (except Monday) on the half-mile track. Last year's race attendance was 220,923.

A major exhibit this year is one in recognition of the Year of the Disabled. The exhibit, prepared by the handicapped, offers information on making life easier for disabled persons and includes a display of prosthetic devices such as artificial limbs and hands.

Talented people's work displayed at fair

"Hi, ho ... come to the fair."

That's the sentiment in these parts now that the Los Angeles County Fair has opened at the Pomona Fairgrounds.

One visit to the Home Arts Building proves that hundreds of men and women have been aware all year that fair time was coming.

The huge building's exhibit cases and alcoves are filled with the creative work of talented people. The range goes from pickles to bridal gowns.

Nadine Lowery, department coordinator, has been working for weeks on judging arrangements, and Pat Mayeda, using her imaginative talent, has arranged the fair entries into interesting and color coordinated displays.

"Doll houses are big this year," Mayeda pointed out as she toured a visitor through the building. There are many clever doll houses exhibited. The architectures are interesting, and furniture in miniature looks like the real thing.

"I like to encourage the handcrafts which aren't being done much anymore by putting them in these cases up front," Mayeda said. She pointed out the hand-woven baskets, corn husk dolls and apple dolls. "All of these crafts are fading," she said.

Quilling was pointed out as being an art which takes patience and care. The craft is done by rolling tiny strips of colored paper into rolls, then creating a picture with them.

In roving through the building, it was noted there are all sorts of ceramics ... some wild and crazy, others practical and still others impractically interesting.

There also seems to be a quantity of homemade teddy bears. There are big ones, little cuddly bears and medium-sized bears. Also rag dolls are plentiful.

The embroidery work exhibited is particularly good this year. There's a wide variety of wall hangings, embroidered pictures of landscapes and flowers, ships and animals. It is mind-boggling to imagine the millions and millions of tiny stitches which have gone into these works of art.

The clothes exhibited seem to lean toward the tailored look of jackets and skirts in wools. Knitted sweaters of all colors and styles are in abundance.

For the first time in many years, the exhibit of bridal gowns and bridesmaids' dresses is large. At least seven bridal gowns are exhibited. Each shows the loving details sewn into these pretty gowns.

Perhaps by intent or just normal placement, right across from the bridal exhibit are the cases filled with baby clothes and carriage and crib quilts and blankets. Yellow appears to be as popular a color for the little ones as the old pink and blue.

In the exhibit of quilts and afghans, one ponders over the creativity of their makers. All sorts of designs and fancy stitches in a rainbow of colors are used in the coverings.

Two days before the fair opened, the Home Arts Building had tables lined up and down the aisles. On these were the cakes, cookies, brownies, pies, candies and breads. The judges were patiently tasting and judging for the best in each category. By the end of the session, the judges' taste buds were taxed to the limit.

Judges had already been at work in the cake decorating area and the other foods ranging from pickles to jams and other canned goods.

It was amazing to note that Irene Hawes of Ontario won places in over 54 categories. She took at least 10 first places, lots of seconds and a few fourths.

In the cake decorating, it was fascinating to see what can be done with frosting. One entry was a basket made with chocolate icing and filled with frosting flowers done by Gail Gibson of Ontario. She didn't win a prize because parts were not eatable, but it was a pretty confection.

Lies are natural to youngsters

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.
Copley News Service

Q. Whenever our 4-year-old is asked a simple question, he gives the opposite from the truth as his answer. He says he likes to tease.

If asked what he did at school, he replies that they did something I know just isn't true. Only after we tell him what we know, will he say what they really did at school.

We've had many talks with him about this situation and others like it, and hate to tell him he is lying. But I don't want him to think he can get away with his constant lies.

A. "Stretching the truth" is not uncommon with young children. Sometimes they do it to attract attention or because they can't quite differentiate true from nontrue situations.

Telling the truth doesn't come naturally. It has to be learned and that takes time. It is so easy not to tell the truth, in order to avoid punishment ("No, I didn't cross the street"), get parents' approval ("Yes, I picked up all the toys"), feel older ("I can too go down that slide"), escape blame ("Baby sister spilt the milk"), or create excitement ("Their house fell right down").

Because a child sometimes doesn't know all the right words to use, or hasn't yet learned differences in sizes, shapes or directions, he or she may stretch the truth, like, "I saw lots and lots of fire engines" (although maybe there were only two), or "His daddy has the biggest car in the world."

Everyone needs recognition and affection, and children may lie for them. After all, what's so serious about saying that I did what you wanted and then you'll give me a smile or a kiss?

It may also seem to be worth a little lie to see how surprised people look and to get a father who seldom visits to stay longer. A young child doesn't often think ahead to the fact that you may find out the truth.

So what can you do about it? Here are some practical hints:

Recognize that lies are part of every young child's life.

Try not to use the word "lie" or to call him or her a "liar" when you are not getting the whole truth. If he or she thinks you have a low opinion of him or her, the main reason to try better may be destroyed.

Understand that a child is less likely to lie again if he or she knows you aren't fooled, that you don't like it when he or she lies ("although I never stop loving you") and that the lies upset friends.

Explain that "make belive" and "really true" aren't the same. Two is too early to try to explain, but by 3 or 4 it may be pretty easy.

Say, "Tell me what you really saw (or took or did)," rather than, "Don't you dare lie to me, young man." Severe punishment sometimes leads to their becoming more skillful at lying instead of being more truthful.

Prevent situations that encourage lies. It doesn't help to ask whether hands were washed when you can see how dirty they still are.

Let's talk

Dark clouds ahead aren't whole story

By REV. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

In the play "South Pacific," Mary Martin sang a song in the midst of World War II with these words: "I'm stuck like a dope, with a thing called hope, I can't get it out of my heart."

She sang it in such a way that the audience could not help standing and applauding. She was saying something important about life, that needed to be remembered.

David said the same thing in another way: "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life." He was not just dreaming, or wishing, but he used the words which affirmed a fact of life.

David was an old man when he wrote this jewel of the Old Testament, the Twenty-Third Psalm. He had lived long enough to see tragedy and to experience deep grief and severe disappointment. He had walked close enough to his God to know that God could meet his needs, restore his life and take away his fear. In the ebb and flow of life, he knew that the dark clouds on the horizon were not the whole story because the sun would shine tomorrow.

We hear a great deal about the depravity of men and the possible destruction of our world by wars, pollution or overpopulation. We all know of bombs that can destroy any city with one awful blast. If you read these dire predictions of hopelessness for our world scene as the only truth, then you can only feel despair. Sometimes I have to take a well-educated mind and use some of the things which David has to offer with the assurance that there is guidance through the dark valleys of life.

One of America's greatest teachers was Professor Endicott Peabody, head master for many years of Groton Boys School. One day standing in the pulpit in chapel he said, "Remember, things in life will not always run smoothly. The great fact to remember is that the trend of civilization is forever upward."

Those words stuck in the mind of one of the students, who about 40 years later gave new heart to a nation when he said, "The only thing to fear is fear itself." The president will always be remembered for the hope he gave to a people who could not see very much hope, even as he sat in a wheelchair and faced a world at war.

A very successful teacher, Dick Rodgers, teaches people to sit quietly and try to turn their minds into absolute blanks. He has them think of the mind as being a motion picture screen. And then he asks them to put on the screen of their mind something good they want to have happen to them. After a time he asks them to take the picture off, and to be mentally blank. Then he tells them to flash it on their mind's screen again, and then to take it off. He repeats this procedure until the picture snaps onto their mental screen quick, sharp and clear.

Soon the process of this picture becomes firmly established in the conscious and the unconscious mind of the person. Then Dick tells them to go and make the picture a reality, and to support it with prayer and faith. It works.

The mind is where we get the energies, the direction for our life. What is pictured in the mind will be developed into life.

If you would like to copy of "Principles for Successful Living" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with those words to Let's Talk, Copley News Service, in care of The Daily Report and I will return this bit of further information on living in a more positive way.

Good education still available to Americans

By REV. M. H. SAEGER
Montclair Ministerial Association

We who are Americans, we who live in America, we are so fortunate; so blessed; so lucky!! I wonder how many of us really realize that? Oh sure, we have our problems; we have our crime; we have our difficulties: but we still live in a great country!! God, whoever your god is; has truly been very good to Americans, to America.

Even though we may complain about our justice system, it still has much merit, and does a pretty good job. Even though we may complain about our police and what they do, yet, they also take a lot from us, as citizens, and all in all, they do a pretty good job. Even though we complain about the high cost of living and housing, yet, when you come right down to it, we "ain't never hardly had it so good!" Even though we complain about our education system, those who really apply themselves can get a good education. Our schools, from kindergarten to post-graduate schools, have teachers who dedicate their time and talents to this one purpose. Oh sure, there are those to whom it is just a job, but to most, it is much more than that. Our youngsters are learning their fundamentals; maybe sometimes in spite of the teacher or school, but those who truly want to learn are doing so! I would like to encourage all of us in the West End to support our schools, our teachers, our administrators, all those who are involved in educating our children. Education is very important for now and the future.

I guess I have to also mention, that in addition to our secular education, spiritual education is also very essential for the child and the adult, for all of us. I would like to encourage all who read this; if you have a home church, use it regularly and frequently. If you have no home church, might I encourage you to find one; the one of your choice!!

I feel both convinced and convicted that "to go with God" is an excellent route to travel and your home church can help you chart the course! OK? Education, both secular and spiritual, is very important to Americans, and to America.

Rev. Saeger is minister at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Total look classes

The Claremont Human Services Department is sponsoring two personal care classes for women. "How's Your Image?" will provide the opportunity for adult women to take a personal look into skin care, hair care and styling, make-up application, and nail care techniques. This three week class will begin Oct. 1 at 7 p.m. at the Youth Activity Center. "Specifically Me" is a similarly structured class geared towards girls ages 12-16 years. This four-week class will begin Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in the Youth Activity Center. Specifically Me will include a trip to the salon for the girls to experiment on themselves with the salon equipment. Pre-registration is required for both of these excellent courses.

Glenn Duckworth is an experienced instructor and owner of "A New Experience Salon" will teach the classes. For further please call 624-4531, extension 280.

Seminar aims to help women 'survive' on own

By NANCY WALLACE
Staff Writer

Judy Young and Marie Sears say they are graduates of IBTU — I've Been There University — and they want to share their knowledge with as many women as possible.

Young and Sears want to show women they can survive on their own, that they can make personal and professional achievements with or without a husband and they can be financially self-sufficient with a little know-how.

They have prepared "Success From the Inside-out," a day-long seminar set for Oct. 31 at the Uplander Motel.

"A lot of people are doing seminars, but not like this," Young said. This project, the first of several to come from their new company Self-Reliance Plus, will be the first they know of to include information on everything from cleaning up a bad credit record to designing a high-energy diet.

"We want to offer a total picture on getting yourself together," Young said. For a registration fee, 100 women will receive information on personal finances, nutrition and beauty and building a positive attitude toward success. The Self-Reliance Plus telephone number is 987-1350.

Young and Sears said women have needed a "total picture" seminar for many years. As real estate investment counselors, they deal daily with women who desparately need some basic financial counseling and a little self-confidence to succeed on their own.

Both were residential real estate agents previously, and both regularly found women who had recently lost a husband through death or divorce. They met women who, at age 70 and older, had never established their own credit and didn't know how to begin alone. And they met many more women who didn't know how to buy a car, qualify to buy a home or how to read and understand contracts and warranties.

These women, for the most part, all had one thing in common: a serious lack of self-confidence.

Young and Sears said they can help these clients because they are experienced the same problems and survived. After divorces, both had to learn by doing in a "man's world." Both said they have experienced sex discrimination when financing a car or applying for a real estate loan, but could not prove anything and had to learn to be patient.

"The aggravation will drive you crazy," Young said in a business-like tone.

She and Sears stressed that while they are most experienced in helping recently divorced or widowed women get started again, their seminar will be for all women. It will help married women gain some independence and self-confidence, and will prepare them for a time when their husband is not there, they said.

Sears is a representative for a cosmetics firm and does group beauty consulting. Young began her first evening-long seminars on "Financial Survival for Women" in June, and said she received "very good" feedback from those sessions.

Young will begin the seminar with a presentation on managing personal finances. She will discuss how and why women, married or single, should establish their own credit. She will discuss how women can qualify to buy a home with less net worth than they thought possible. And she will explain the basics of reading a contract.

The seminar will continue with lessons in self-confidence. The film "Packing Your Own Chute" will show how one woman found it harder to trust her life to her own skills than it was to learn the skills of packing one's own parachute and jumping. Psychologist Sherry Wallace, Chaffey College professor, will expand on this point in her talk, "Attitude and Achievement."

The second half of the seminar will focus on personal appearance because, Young said, "It's amazing, when you look good and you feel good, the things that you can do."

Sears will speak on beauty and nutrition, subjects she had to develop expertise in as a stewardess and a cosmetic company representative. Professional color coordinator Edee Wolfenberger will discuss building a wardrobe, and stylist Kathy Edwards of Diamond Lil's Salon will demonstrate fast, effective blow-drying and other hair-care tips.

As a "grand prize," Sears and Young will award a personal total make over. Sears will outline a skin care regimen and an energy-nutrition chart. Wolfenberger will prepare an individual color chart. Young will present a personal finance packet and offer individual financial counseling. And the winner will select a complete outfit, for the office or elsewhere, of their choice.

Sears and Young said men have already requested a similar seminar, but that is a long way off. "Frankly, I don't understand what a man feels when he goes through a divorce because I'm not a man," Young observed. She said she won't admit men to this seminar because "they'll hear some things they don't want to hear," specifically about discrimination against women.

Both say they want those attending to get a feeling of being prepared for anything, that they can deal with almost any situation.

In the next few months, they want to follow with a seminar on investing and growing professionally.

And both admit they may someday be ready to leave their real estate counseling behind and focus all their efforts on helping women grow through Self-Reliance Plus.

Getting the most out of single living

Temporary or permanent singlehood has not been a situation anyone prepares for, and there has been no general education covering the problems and joys of being single until just recently.

But being single is fast becoming a lifestyle for many hundreds of thousands of Americans.

A new series of workshops designed to provide some answers and skills necessary to get the most out of single living is set to start this month at Mt. San Antonio College. For persons never married, widowed, divorced, or separated, the group of six concentrated sessions will show singles how to build personal and social relationships, self - esteem, raise children alone and enjoy them, and some of the best ways to manage money effectively.

"Building Caring Relationships" will open the Saturday series on Sept. 26. Dr. Patricia McNaughton, director of the Center of the SELF and certified trainer for the Personal Dynamics Institute, will discuss ways of bringing enthusiasm to singles' relationships. She used both individual and group activities to help participants develop the skills and persistence to begin and maintain rewarding, caring new and continuing relationships.

John Brennecke, psychologist and author of several texts on the psychology of intimacy and love, and Karen Osmundson, psychologist, will conduct the second workshop, "Sexuality and Being Single," on Oct. 17. They will explore some of the problems often encountered when singles attempt to continue or regain or start a normal, satisfying sex life. Practical issues affecting everyone will be discussed, including intimacy, love, friendships, and the joys and sorrows of single life.

Brennecke will return Nov. 8 at Industry Hills Conference Center to conduct the third workshop, "Feeling Good About Yourself." This special brunch session will focus on self-esteem, why it may be low or limiting, and what can be done by the individual to change it. Points covered will provide ways of reaching the fullest potential for an enjoyalbe, fulfilling life.

McNaughton returns Nov. 14 to discuss types of lifestyles and how to choose the best one in "Styles of Relating," and again Jan. 16, she'll cover the hazards and happinesses of "Single Parenting."

Business and law instructor and member of the California Bar Association Dr. Jim Ford will show participants in the Feb. 16 workshop how to budget, what laws are involved with your money, how to spend and invest, and how to have fun with dollars. Ford says he can't make anyone rich, but he can show how to enjoy resources — to survive and to enhance a lifestyle.

Registrations for the Saturday workshops are currently being taken in the college's community services office, extension 220. The fee must be payed at the time of registration. The popularity of the subject promises to fill the workshops quickly. Many participants will reserve space in each for the whole series. Thus, early registration is urged for this timely and informative program or not?

You don't have to. It's purely a matter for you to decide.

This newspaper is what is called in newspaper circles, a controlled circulation newspaper. There are dozens across the country—enough even to have conventions. The purpose of a controlled circulation newspaper is to provide local news, local service and local advertising to an important, independent, interested community.

But where does your carrier come in? They are paid a minimum allowance for delivering your local newspaper. They depend on you, really for their income, because when they collect, most of it is theirs. Controlled circulation newspapers work like that, on a voluntary pay plan.

We hope you appreciate and enjoy your newspaper enough to voluntarily pay your carrier. They are dependable. They are rendering you a service. They would like to earn the money. Pay them? Think about it.

Putting for hope

Practicing the art of putting for the First City of Hope Golf Tournament Oct. 8 are Stan Myers, left, and Earl Morgan, tournament chairman. A shotgun start will tee off at noon on El Rancho Verde County Club golf course, Rialto. A banquet will follow the play. All proceeds will go to the work of the City of Hope in Duarte. The tournament is being sponsored by the Claremont-Montclair Chapter of City of Hope. For tickets, call Morgan at 946-5350, Myers, a committee member, at 946-2135 or Bob Peiters at 985-0081.

WINDSURFING

Windsurfing instruction is being co-sponsored by Sarcus Ski & Sport and the Upland Recreation Department. All swimmers 60 pounds and over, are invited to learn and experience the newest and fastest growing sport. Whether you want to fly over water in a cloud of spray, or glide quietly in light breezes, the experience will be a thrill to remember.

The class will begin Monday, October 5, from 6-7:30 p.m. at the Upland Recreation Department with a lecture on windsurfing and sailing. Participants will then meet at Frank G. Bonelli Park on a following weekday from 4-7 p.m.

Registration will begin September 21 for the excitement. Sign up early as only 20 students will be able to be accepted, $41 plus a minimal parking fee.
